To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my support for the project Feathers by Sandrine Monin and Roberto Rusconi.

I believe this project will discuss and bring awareness to many topics and issues that need more of a voice in the public realm. This project will offer valuable opportunities to blind and visually impaired people across the UK and has a strong link to the research happening at UCL. UCL Culture are supporting this project through offering access to our collection at the Petrie Museum and staff who are experts in this collection. We are also offering rehearsal space free of charge. The project team are committed to working with researchers and collections to develop and deepen the understanding and knowledge required to ensure this project is highly successful.

I believe the funding of this project will bring richness and meaning to the artistic lives of many visually impaired, blind and seeing people. UCL Culture are excited to continue working with the project team and look forward to supporting the process through to its realisation and beyond.

Yours sincerely,

Rorie Evans
